Top 10 Project Partner Write-Up

Having worked on the Top 10 project alongside Darcy, I noticed that she is very creative and came up with a great style for our website. We both decided on a color palette for the website that we both liked and then worked on designing and laying out our website, letting each other know when we liked something over another. I liked that Darcy was not reserved when it came to criticism and would let me know when she did not like something, and I appreciated that as it helped us land on a design and layout that we both liked for the website. When it came to splitting up the work we tried to split it as evenly as we can, we both worked on our respective html files that housed our top 10 lists. Darcy worked on the majority of the index.html file while I gathered the assets we needed for our lists and then assisted in ensuring the index.html and my list page were responsive to the respective device screen size. We later decided that we wanted to include compatibility for phone screen sizes (~576px) and added it to the Figma to reflect those changes. Overall, I enjoyed working and collaborating with Darcy as she is very productive, communicative, creative, and vocal. It made working on the project an enjoyable experience as we both were communicating with each other when we found a fix to an issue we were trying to solve, or adjusting styling choices. To highlight her communication skills, she encountered an issue with github and was worried that the potential change could affect my portion of the project. So before she committed and tried to resolve the issue, she let me know through slack to go into the code and save a sudo backup of the code to prevent issues. I appreciated her letting me know what the issue she was encountering was, how it could affect my portion of the project, and to make a backup in case.
